

Since the printing of the following letter almost a month ago, not one letter has appeared to rebut my charges.

The Daily American Newspaper
Somerset, Pennsylvania

Dear Editor,

In the 2/12 edition of the Daily American, virtually an entire page consisting of two editorials mockingly berated the “climate change” position of the Republican Party. Both articles were filled with unsubstantiated bluster yet were virtually void of hard scientific data to corroborate the certitude of the Democrat agenda. Likewise readers will in vain search the Democrat Party Platform on Climate Change website for that data. I urge readers to note that absence for yourself. On the other hand, the Left-leaning website, “Smithsonian: Ocean—Find Your Blue,” (<https://ocean.si.edu/through-time/ancient-seas/sea-level-rise>) states, “Scientists agree that the changes in climate that we are seeing today are largely caused by human activity, and it's climate change that drives sea level rise. Sea levels started rising in the late 1800s, soon after we started burning coal, gas and other fossil fuels for energy.” Nevertheless this bald assertion is, to the contrary, unassailably false. Anyone committed to “following the science” will realize that earth’s warming trends, indicated by substantial glacial feature remnants, will acknowledge that our planet has been warming ever since the close of the last ice age 18,000 years ago which, by my calculations, was long before the industrial revolution of “the late 1800s.” I am deeply committed to caring for our environment. But unless Democrats commit themselves to reconsidering the relevant data they obviously ignore; their warnings are suspect.
