

My Articles Intersecting Scientific Truth, Rational Faith, and Biblical Revelation from an “Old-Earth Creationist” Perspective

Rev. Gary Jensen is a retired Pastor of the North American Lutheran Church (NALC).

After having separated myself from the mounting apostasy of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), I took the leap of seeking a new church home in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod (LCMS) where I served as Pastor for eleven years. I now describe that experience leaping from the frying pan into the fire. Since I had already embraced Big Bang cosmology when I entered the LCMS through colloquy in 2007, I realized that my views on the relationship between science and theology represented a decidedly minority position. But I was shocked to discover that they were rejected wholesale across the entire synod to the degree that I was hindered from publicly applying scientific evidence as a powerful indicator that God exists. It is for this reason that I repeatedly sought to persuade LCMS officials to reconsider their effectively anti-science posture in regard to their interpretation of Genesis 1:1-2:4. Although that contention may not represent your concerns, I have concluded that the ramifications that follow from their views are so enormous that, without apology, I give special room on this website (especially sections I-III, below) so that you may reflect on these matters yourself.
